New cartoon movies out in theaters

Several notable new films are set to hit theaters this week, from a highly anticipated action comedy to acclaimed biographical drama of criticism. Can't decide which option to check first? Here are our staff picks for the first three movies to check out this weekend. 1. Love & Mercy Directed by Bill Pohlad, the biographical drama follows a parallel narrative that covers two specific periods of time in the life of Beach Boys singer Brian Wilson. He begins in the late 1960s and follows Wilson (played by Paul Dano) as he stops touring, produces Pet Sounds and begins to lose his sanity. By 1980, an old Wilson (John Cusack, under the influence of a control therapist, finds a savior in Melinda Ledbetter (Elizabeth Banks). The film, which draws its title from the 1988 song by Wilson, was a beloved festival, getting widely praised by critics at last year's Tribeca Film Festival and this year's South West. It currently holds an 88% fresh rating on Rotten Tomatoes, with reviewers calling the biopic deeply satisfying, emotionally acute and extraordinarily sensitive to the amorphous nature of Wilson's life and art. Dano won special praise for the individual portrayal of a tortured but hopeful musical genius. Dano lets him bleed, for which interpretation awards have been invented. You can't take your eyes off him, Rolling Stone wrote of his performance. Banks was also praised for bringing warmth and humor to the film. 2. Spy Melissa McCarthy is back on the big screen, this time as CIA analyst Susan Cooper, who has spent her entire office-bound career and helping giving agent Bradley Fine (Jude Law), despite having solid field training. However, when Bradley is assassinated by a Bulgarian arms dealer, Rayna Boyanov (Rose Byrne), Susan convinces her bosses to take on her first undercover mission to capture Boyanov and avenge Bradley. The film brings McCarthy together with honorary director Paul Feig. The film has gained extremely positive reviews, currently holding a 94% fresh score on Rotten Tomatoes. Critics have labeled Spy one of McCarthy's best blockbuster comedies yet, praising Feig for giving the funny actress a vehicle that allows her to embrace the full range of her comedy capabilities. After Variety described, Melissa McCarthy becomes the funniest, most versatile and sustained comic presentation of her film career in this deliriously fun action-comedy. Byrne, who quickly becomes one of the secret weapons of comedy, has also won critical praise for portraying her cruelly hilarious character and sharp chemistry with McCarthy. 3. Charlie's Country Directed by Rolf de Heer, Australian drama film stars David Gulpilil as Charlie, a past first warrior, who lives remote Aboriginal community in the north of the country. As the government increases its strangulation on the traditional way of life of the community, Charlie finds himself caught between two cultures. After After The newly crafted gun and spear are taken, he finally becomes fed up and decides to head into the wild on his own, to live the old way. What he didn't consider is where he could end up or how much life has changed since the old days. The film, which was screened last year at the Cannes and Toronto International Film Festivals, won critical acclaim with a 92% approval rating for Rotten Tomatoes. Apart from his unique use of a Steadicam to follow Charlie's character as he quickly walks through his land, critics have praised the film for its delicate and powerful portrayal of cultural displacement and a man's determination not to lose himself. Gulpilil, who appears in almost every scene and also co-wrote the film, earned individual praise for his performance. It is a testament to what the Heer and Gulpilil have achieved here - with simplicity and infinite nuance - that through all the highs and devastating descents... The character's identity remains etched in every aspect of the show. The Hollywood Reporter wrote about the film. If you're looking to take a break from summer blockbusters and check out a more complicated and layered drama, this is the movie for you. More from Entertainment Cheat Sheet: Sheet:
